

Quarter 1 Group Project

Create a journal showcasing the Quarter 1 papers of your group. Present this journal in a brief overview to the class.

Overview

Your papers represent your best thoughts relating to the unit's essential question, "What does 'freedom' mean?" The objective of the group projects is to present them with the respect they deserve. Equally important is learning about ownership, responsibility, and working together toward a shared goal. The process and the product go hand-in-hand.

Requirements

- ☐ Artful and/or Elegant Project Cover with original title
- ☐ Authors (group members) listed on title page
- ☐ Table of Contents
- ☐ One-page introduction describing each member's paper, single-spaced.
- ☐ Each group member's final paper with an individual cover page
- ☐ One workshopped draft for each paper, with evidence of feedback
- ☐ One artifact of drafting / prewriting / organizing ideas for each paper
- ☐ Binder, folder, or some other way of holding the work together

Note:

- Group members share the grade equally on the journal as a whole.
- Problems or issues in the group should be addressed before coming to the teacher. In other words, before I do anything to intervene there must be documentation of the problem and attempts to solve it.
- Failure to fill the requirements results in a failing grade for the entire group.
- All journals that fill the requirements will pass with a minimum of a 60%.

Directions

1. ☐ Exchange contact information
2. ☐ Assign roles and responsibilities
Suggested roles to be assigned or shared: materials; printer; art; table of contents; introduction (whole or part); proofreader; speaker
3. ☐ Create plan, timeline, checklist, who owns what parts of the projects
4. ☐ Group Work Days:
The only mandatory activity during group work days is the writers workshops on Oct. 21/22 – all of the other group work days are up the group to use effectively:

A-Day:	10-07	10-21(W)	10-23	10-25
B-Day	10-08	10-22(W)	10-24	10-28
5. Group leader should check in regularly with members on paper progress and responsibilities
6. Present an overview of your work in a brief, five-minute presentation on the submission date, A-Day 10-29; B-Day 10-30. Submit the journal immediately afterward.
